

What is a MODEL G20?

Based on the real G20 Summit, or Group of 20, students act as leaders from around the world, gathering to discuss trending global topics and draft agreements for the betterment of their respective countries, and the world.

Global Perspective

Students who attend the Model G20 will act as leaders of G20 countries different from their own.

To succeed, students must learn all about their new country and think like a local citizen and work through cultural differences.

Why is it Important?

Diversity Resources calls cultural competence one of the most important skills for the 21st Century.

43.2
Million

This is how many immigrants were in the U.S. as of 2015. Today, it has become increasingly important to be able to navigate cultural differences in order to thrive at work and school.

G20 Members:

Argentina, Australia, Brazil, Canada, China, France, Germany, India, Indonesia, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Russian Federation, Saudi Arabia, South Africa, South Korea, Turkey, United Kingdom, United States, and the European Union

Since 2016 we've welcomed:

600 Students

with ties to:

Pakistan
Peru
Japan
Korea
Ethiopia
The UK

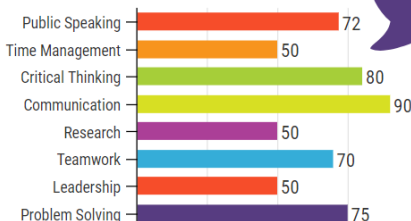

Haiti
China
India
Italy
Lebanon
Egypt

CORE DISCUSSION TOPICS ARE BASED ON THE REAL G20

- *Climate Change
- *Employment
- *Sustainable Development
- *Digital Security

● Percentage of time spent building and utilizing each skill during the Model G20

*Topics subjected to change based on summit

Employees are looking for these critical skills.

In a survey conducted by CareerBuilder in 2014, 77% of employers said they were seeking candidates with soft skills such as the ones above. Colleges are looking for applicants with similar skills. Harvard University's website asks potential students if they "have a genuine commitment or leadership role" in extracurricular activities.

Is this like a Model UN?

The Model G20 provides its own customized preparation courses, both online and in-person. Courses will range from public speaking to topics relevant to the real G20. This will support students' readiness to participate fully. The culminating 3-day role-playing simulation at the end of the summit is a unique educational model devised by Knowva Academy. We emphasize skills in communication, negotiation, and persuasion. Further, this model operates in an open and semi-structured conference, in comparison to a more formal summit. Our approach highlights an exciting way to learn and retain information.
